Celebrating Infant Baptism During Sunday Mass

The Rite of Baptism for Children strongly recommends that baptisms take place on Sunday, the day of the resurrection, at a communal celebration for several children. It promotes the value of welcoming new members into the Church in a liturgy which includes the active participation of the assembly as well as music, processions, symbols and all the elements of a genuine celebration.

The obvious way to meet these recommendations is to incorporate the sacrament of baptism into the parish Sunday Mass. According to the Rite, this practice is to be encouraged because it enables the entire community to be present and brings out clearly the relationship between Baptism and the Eucharist.

This means that instead of a small group of family and friends gathering somewhat awkwardly in an empty - and perhaps alien - church for a quasi-private ceremony conducted in a virtual monologue, they are welcomed into a joyful gathering of the parish community where they are served by a variety of ministers and supported in their commitment.

Including the parents and children as well as the godparents in the entrance procession (provided they have been adequately prepared and instructed) helps to incorporate them into the community and the celebration from the outset. It also reflects the fact that

Baptism, for all Christians, is our rite of entry into the Church.

The Sunday Mass need not be any longer than usual when the celebration of Baptism is included. The rite of reception replaces the penitential rite and Gloria, with the opening prayer following directly after the signing of the infants. Instead of reciting the Creed, the assembly can be invited to join the parents and godparents in responding to the questions about the rejection of evil and profession of faith.

Sharing Eucharist together after such an experience takes on a dimension which makes the effort and planning involved more than worthwhile.

The 2020 Plenary Council is a national project providing a platform for a broad scale discussion among parishes and Catholics across the country concerning the future of the Church in Australia and what you think God is asking of us at this time.
